Colorado Springs—Rocky Mountain Health Care Services, a local nonprofit serving vulnerable seniors and adults with brain injuries, completed renovations in January on a 60,000 square foot building on Pikes Peak Avenue. The building was the former location of Doctor’s Hospital and Eisenhower Hospital. The new location will begin delivering services in February.

“Our mission is to improve lives, optimize wellness and promote independence in our community,” RMHCS CEO Tom Reiter said. “Our dedicated staff will now be able to enhance this mission by delivering services in an inspiring and modernized atmosphere.”

A ribbon cutting and open house is scheduled for Tuesday, February 9th. Guest speakers include John Suthers, Colorado Springs Mayor; Gavin Atwood, CEO of Brain Injury Alliance of Colorado; and Shawn Bloom, CEO of the National PACE Association (Program of All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly).

Rocky Mountain Health Care Services serves more than 3,500 clients in El Paso, Park and Teller Counties each year.

A medical clinic, rehabilitation unit, day health center, art classrooms, residential area, outdoor living area and commercial kitchen will operate at the new location. The new space will allow the 40-year-old local nonprofit organization to expand their mission of serving vulnerable seniors and those with brain injuries.

RMHCS is the parent company of Rocky Mountain PACE (Program of All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly), BrainCare and HealthRide.
